

Abstract

Rapid mixing and homogenisation of reaction mixtures with respect to temperature and chemical concentrations, as well as greatly enhanced mass transport is achieved when the reaction mixture placed in a vassel suitable for centrifugation, and subjected to asymmetric heating, cooling and simultaneous centrifugation at conditions for creating an enhanced flow within the reaction mixture, wherein the flow ensures practically total mixing and homogenisation of the reaction mixture.